

Assessment Tools for Pre-marital and Marriage Counselling

About the workshop

Do you use the Best Tools for relationship assessment?

The purpose of relationship inventory and couples assessment tool is to help people see how their evidence of connection compares to their level of clarity about the relationship.

Different assessment tools are structured to be helpful both for those who have seen a relationship grow over a period of time but want to know if it's moving toward a more formal romantic relationship and those who want to know if their formal romantic relationship is moving toward marriage.

The assessment tools are sophisticated instrument that must be interpreted by a trained facilitator, counsellor, therapist or psychologist and can help to identify the unique strengths and potential growth areas of the pre-marital or married relationship.
